To question all things; — never to turn away from any difficulty; to accept no doctrine either from ourselves or from other people without a rigid scrutiny by negative criticism; letting no fallacy, or incoherence, or confusion of thought step by unperceived; above all, to insist upon having the meaning of a word clearly understood before using it, and the meaning of a proposition before assenting to it; — these are the lessons we learn from ancient dialecticians.

What song the Sirens sang? . . . They sang of all that is above fulfillment and beyond clear vision, of the immeasurable, the uncontained, the half-imagined; of that which is touched but never held, implored but unpossessed.

. . . They sang the vileness of all who live contented upon an alms, and are at ease in bonds, the slaves whose servitude is made sweet by habit.
